TAX CENTRE OF EXCELLENCE

Building total tax performance and continuous improvement by transforming the tax function into a “best practices” environment.

In an environment of intense scrutiny, tax departments worldwide are experiencing exponential increases in their administrative responsibilities. Tight deadlines and compressed time frames are the norm, while tax executives are continuously challenged to adapt to the requirements of changing corporate structures, disparate data sources, frequent audits, and an increasing number of taxing jurisdictions.

Tax executives essentially have two choices: do nothing and perpetuate the status quo, or do something to enhance reliability, accuracy, and the overall efficiency of tax through the right alignment of people, processes, and systems.

Ryan helps develop strategies to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the people, processes, and systems that will engineer certainty and repeatability in the tax operation. We uncover innovative and efficient ways to manage the tax implications of globalisation and the varied priorities and perspectives that exist country by country. We also help tax executives enhance the credibility and visibility of the tax department to build consensus across their key organisational partners for deploying their process improvement strategies.
