

TRANSFORMING MAIL

in the Digital Age

Many companies spend countless hours physically mailing documents required to run their businesses. They are forced to invest considerable human resources and capital to print, stuff envelopes, apply postage, and mail these important documents. Additional work is then necessary to track the mailings and create an audit trail to demonstrate compliance.

Did you ever wonder why that is the case in today's digital age?

Introducing RyanMail™, an integrated push-button service for automating mail operations and tracking your mailings. RyanMail electronically transmits your mail documents to a network of printers around the country, which validates the addresses, prints the letters, stuffs the envelopes, and applies the postage. Searchable screens containing every detail of your mailings, including copies of the letters and their status, provide improved compliance, visibility, and reporting. Users also have multiple postage options such as first-class or certified mail.

Whether it is unclaimed property due diligence letters, exemption certificates, or any other documents required to run your business, RyanMail powers your compliance by delivering an automated cost-saving solution.

With RyanMail, your organization can increase compliance with better visibility while saving time and money on mail operations—freeing your capital to invest, grow, and thrive.
